Join McMillan on Tuesday, April 1st for its next environmental law webinar on key issues impacting business, real estate and financing transactions in Canada. We will discuss strategies for identifying and managing environmental risks, including the appropriate scope of due diligence, contaminated sites and environmental non-compliance liability, as well as approaches to contract drafting with respect to environmental representation, indemnities and allocation of liability. While environmental issues can present challenges in the context of a transaction, our experts will discuss some best practices you can implement to get your deals across the finish line while managing risks.
