McMillan is delighted to announce the firm's patent group has been recognized by the 2022 IAM Patent 1000 Guide for exceptional expertise in patent litigation and patent prosecution. The 2022 Guide also names Toronto Partner Keith Bird and Vancouver Partner Pablo Tseng as top practitioners in the area of patent law. This recognition is a testament to the firm's strength in the resolution of complex disputes and helping clients navigate complex regulatory regimes.

"McMillan has a sturdy IP practice comprising over 22 enthusiastic and committed lawyers and patent agents. It runs the gamut of intellectual property, managing approximately 4,000 patents and designs, as well as over 10,000 trademark registrations. On the contentious side the team has handled a number of significant cases, including a landmark patent infringement action for SALT Canada in 2020, which overturned three decades of established Canadian patent law. Keith Bird, the founder of the patent group, took the lead on the dispute. His laser-like focus on commercial solutions is underpinned by his vast knowledge of the law, and he brings "excellent communication and flexibility" to everything he does. Working alongside him is Pablo Tseng, a solid partner who "has demonstrated incredible professionalism and integrity. Pablo is in a league of his own, understands his clients' challenges and always finds a way to solve them, all while effortlessly balancing legal concerns with their business needs.", (Law Business Research, "IAM Research" (2022), online: <https://www.iam-media.com/rankings/patent-1000/profile/firm/mcmillan-llp#iam-research>).

Published annually, IAM Patent 1000: Guide to the World's Leading Patent Professionals, focuses exclusively on the patent practice and identifies the top legal patent professionals and firms across the globe. Individual and firm rankings are based on an extensive global research process involving interviews with private practice lawyers and in-house counsel.

Patent Practice

McMillan's patent lawyers protect original creations and enforce IP rights by combining their experience in international patent law with a strong ability to convey technical concepts. We have one of the fastest patent prosecution practices in Canada, along with having one of the highest volume to size of group ratio nationally.

On the patent prosecution side, we are in the top 20 firms in Canada for filings. On the litigation side, we have several large matters on the go. We understand the innovation process—from research and development to manufacturing and distribution agreements to transfers and licensing.
