Categories: People, Law Students

Anna Stabb is an articling student at McMillan.

During her legal studies, Anna worked as a senior law student at Dalhousie Legal Aid Service, providing legal services and appearing in court for low-income clients in Halifax. She also served as co-president of the Schulich OUTLaw Society and volunteered with Pro Bono Dalhousie and the Elizabeth Fry Society of Mainland Nova Scotia. Prior to law school, Anna was president of a housing cooperative for over 240 students in Toronto. She has experience in corporate communications and as an environmental law legal intern.

Anna holds a JD from the Schulich School of Law with a certificate in environmental law and a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Toronto.

She worked at McMillan as a summer student before returning to the firm as an articling student.
