Categories: People, Law Students

Fengge Sun is an articling student at McMillan.

At the Faculty of Law, Fengge served as a legal extern with the University of Toronto Entrepreneurship Hatchery, providing services to help students with entrepreneurial dreams to launch their start-ups. She has also volunteered with Amnesty International's Digital Verification Corps, where she conducted open-source investigations to examine human rights abuse issues.

Fengge holds a JD from the University of Toronto Faculty of Law, and a Bachelor of Science degree from McGill University. She summered with McMillan before returning to the firm as an articling student.
