Categories: People, Lawyers

Gray Morfopoulos is an Associate with the Litigation & Dispute Resolution practice at McMillan. His practice includes commercial, administrative and public law litigation and arbitration. Prior to joining McMillan, Gray's practice focused on litigation, labour and public law. He also has experience assisting on disputes before all levels of the British Columbia Courts, several tribunals and the Federal Court.

Throughout his legal education, he competed in the Jessup International Law Moot and served as an assistant editor of the UBC Law Review. Gray also provided pro bono civil and criminal legal services to individuals through the British Columbia Law Students' Legal Advice Program and spent a summer in law school working for the Department of Justice's Trade Law Bureau.
