

HABIB MAVANI

Categories: People, Lawyers

Habib Mavani is developing a growing capital markets and securities law practice focused on investment funds, mergers and acquisitions, and general securities, as well as corporate transactions. He provides counsel to clients in a range of industries, including asset management, mining and technology.

While earning a combined business-law degree, Habib acted as staff editor on the University of Toronto Law Review Journal. During this time, he was selected to participate in the Rotman Onboard Fellowship Program, giving him the opportunity to consult the board of a Canadian non-profit organization on corporate governance issues.

Habib's previous professional experience includes working as an analyst at a venture capital firm and interning at a corporate litigation law firm in Singapore.
