Categories: People, Law Students

Lexi Benlolo is an articling student at McMillan. She worked at McMillan as a summer student prior to returning to the firm for her articles.

Lexi completed a JD/BComm combined degree at Queen's University. She holds a Commerce degree from Queen's Smith School of Business where she received the Chancellors Scholarship, a major admission award for demonstrating superior academic ability, creative and original thinking, involvement in school or community activities, and proven leadership.

During her legal studies, Lexi volunteered with the Queen's Business Law Clinic, acting as a student caseworker. She is the founder of The Pampered Pillowcase, an organization that provides pillowcases filled with items that make individuals feel appreciated to women in shelters and centres within communities across North America. She obtained her real estate licence in 2018 and has previous experience working in both the residential and commercial real estate fields.
