Categories: People, Law Students

Seema Sidhu is an articling student at McMillan.

During her legal studies, Seema served as Co-Chair of the South Asian Law Students' Association, a Senior Editor with the Indigenous Law Journal and a volunteer with the International Human Rights Program. She completed a Pro Bono Students' Canada Placement with the Canadian Centre to End Human Trafficking and placed first in Canadian national rounds at the Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot. She previously completed a clinical legal externship with the Barbra Schlifer Commemorative Clinic and worked as a Summer Fellow with Innocence Canada.

Seema holds a JD from the University of Toronto Faculty of Law and a bachelor of arts in philosophy from Queen's University. She worked at McMillan as a summer student prior to returning to the firm as an articling student.
